Important concepts

Here are some important definitions that will help you understand better your dashboard's metrics.

Commission plan

A commission plan is the specific arrangement under which your sub-partners conduct their trading activities, and from which you earn a commission based on the established terms of that plan. The existent plans are Turnover, Revenue Share and Master Partner.

Revenue Share

A type of commission plan in which you can potentially earn a percentage of the net revenue generated by the activity in Deriv trading options, of clients that registered to Deriv using your referral link. This starts at 30% but can go up to 45% of net revenue.

Turnover

The turnover plan is a commission plan where you earn based on the total trading volume of the clients you refer in Deriv Options. The more actively your clients trade, the higher your potential earnings, as your commission comes from their overall trading activity rather than individual transactions.

Introducing Broker (IB)

The IB plan is a commission model where you refer clients to Deriv CFD options (DMT5, Deriv cTrader and Deriv X), and earn based on their trading volume. You take an active role in managing and supporting your clients, building stronger relationships.

Important concepts

Master Partner

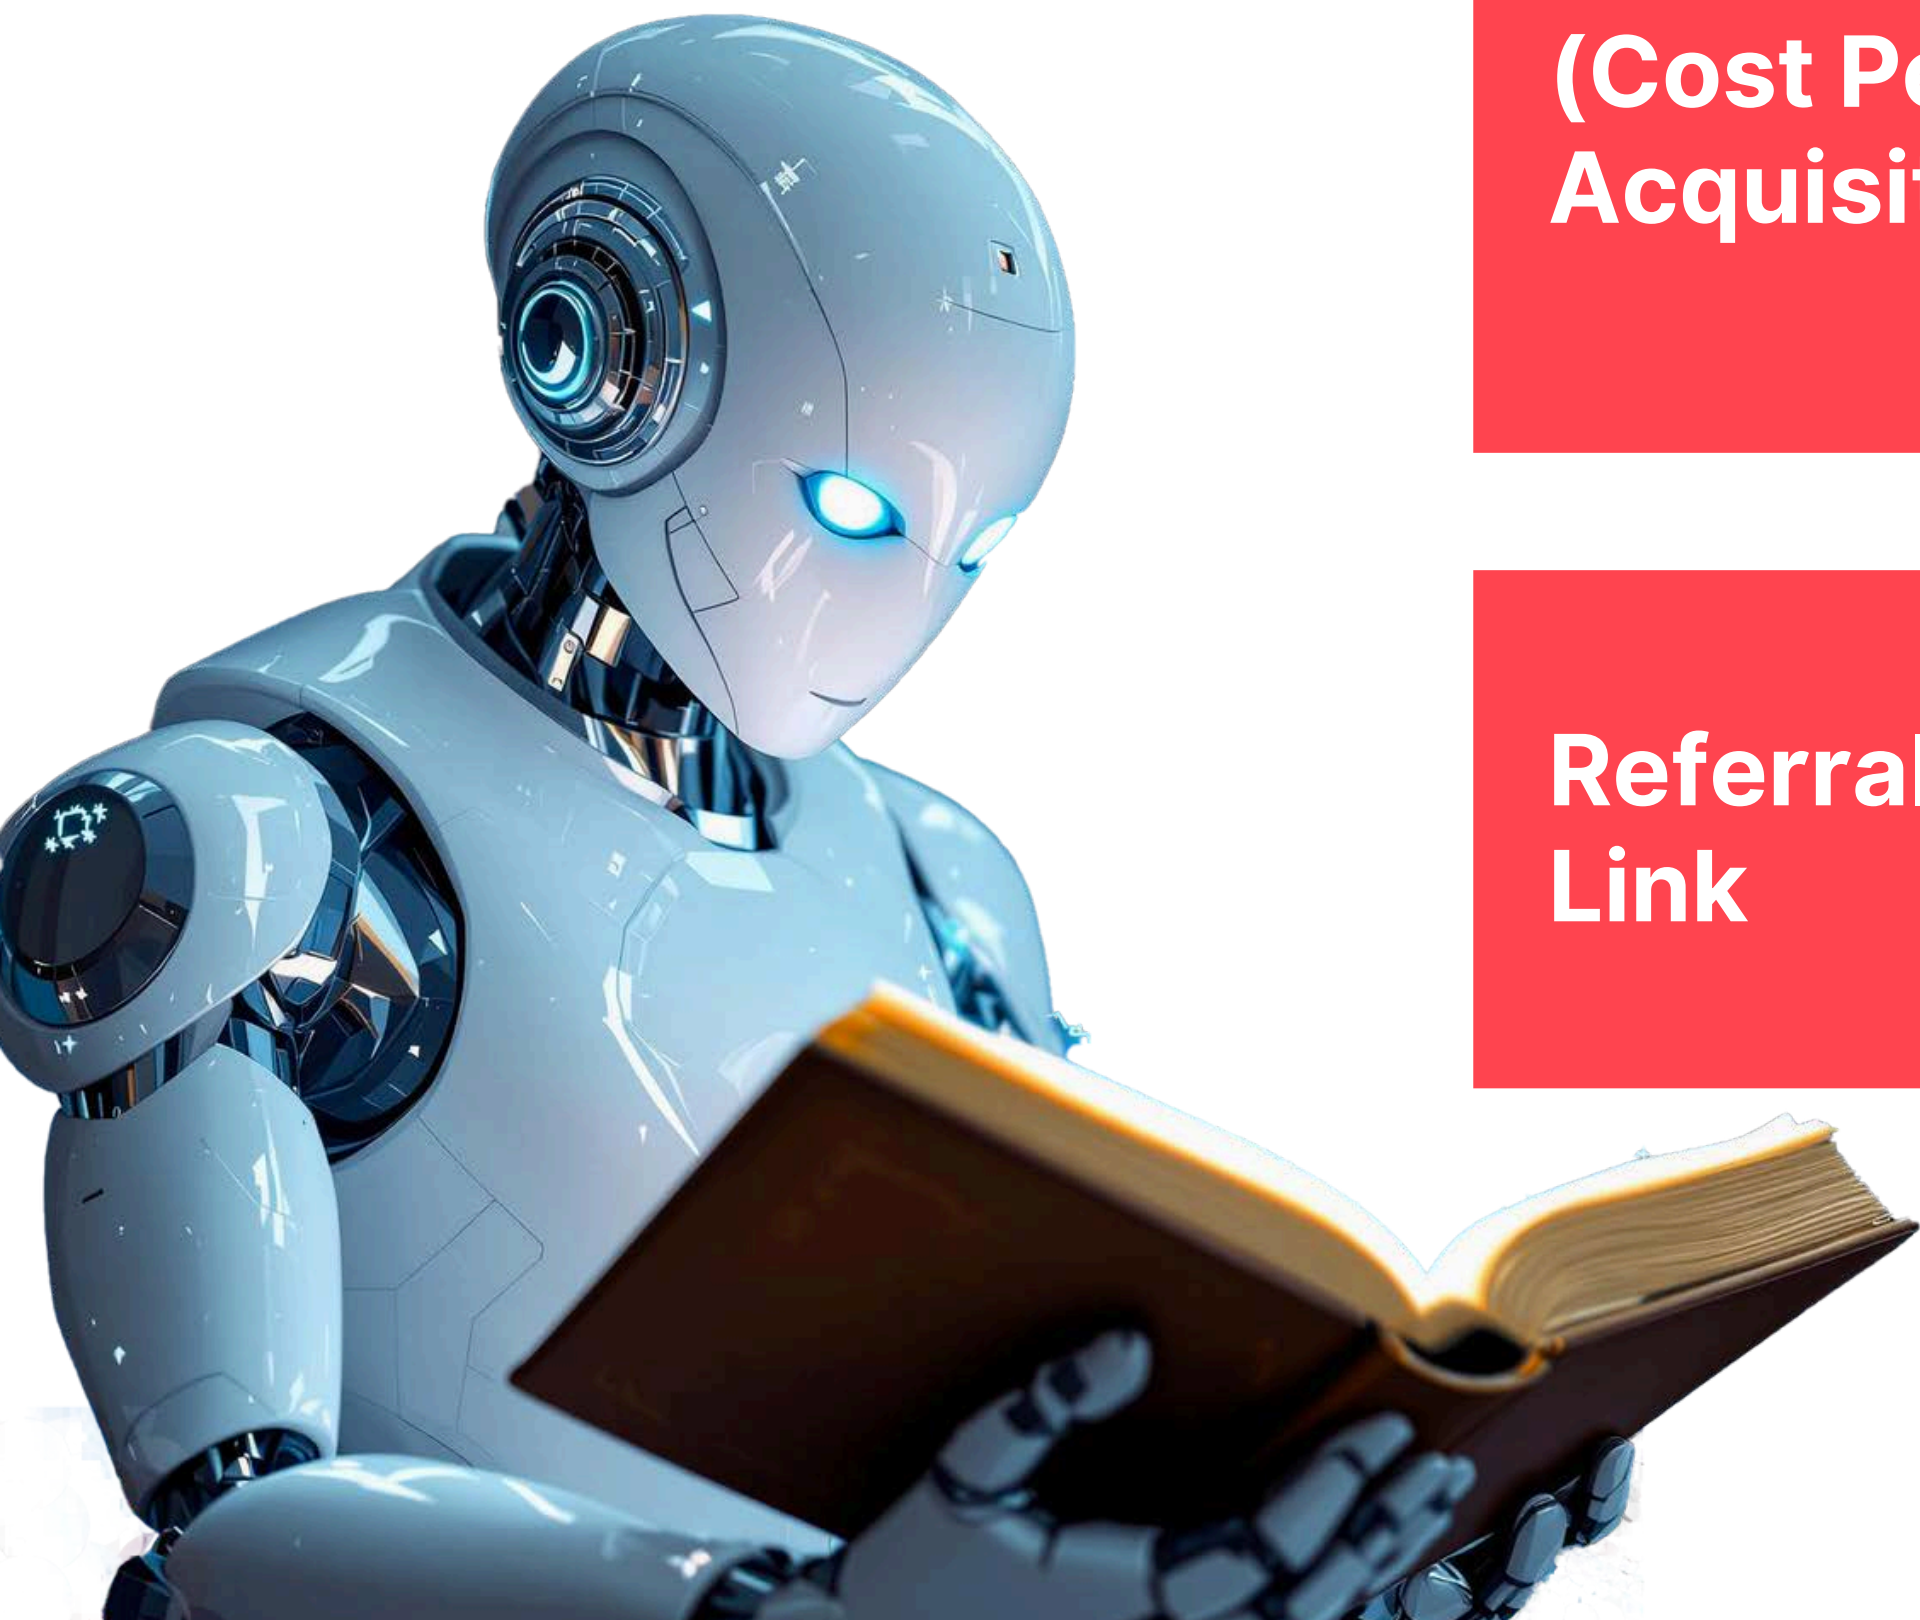

This is a multi-tiered master partner programme that enables you to build your own network of partners, with up to five tiers. As a master partner, you can introduce other partners, who can also introduce further partners. You earn commissions not only from your own referred clients, but also from the trading activity across your entire partner network, allowing you to benefit from a broader, multi-tiered structure.

CPA (Cost Per Acquisition)

Under the CPA plan, you receive USD 100 for each newly referred client with an EU account who deposits a total of USD 100 or more into their Deriv account, either in a single deposit or cumulatively. This plan is available exclusively to clients living in certain EU countries (excluding Portugal and Spain). If you are based outside this region, you may still participate but can only refer clients from the eligible EU countries.

Referral Link

A referral link is a unique web address that tracks clients you refer to Deriv, ensuring you receive the relevant benefits according to each specific plan. Each plan has its own distinct link, allowing the appropriate activity to be monitored. For example, your Master Partner link will be different from your Turnover plan link.
